

Learning Outcomes

LO	Description
LO 1	LO 1 - Engage with the tensions between historical and contemporary social work as complicit, and contribute to leading the profession towards a decolonial, restorative, anti-oppressive and environmentally-just stance.
LO 2	LO 2 - Balance the tensions of pragmatic and liberatory concerns within social work practice and contexts.
LO 3	LO 3 - Identify and apply methods to contest capitalist mechanism of control, representation and surveillance, including in technologically-driven contexts.
LO 4	LO 4 - Acknowledge responsibility for and apply knowledge of the past and present responsibility of social work in historic and current trauma, including colonial violence, state-based Indigenous genocide, and Indigenous femicide.
LO 5	LO 5 - Identify and apply strategies to challenge and interrupt anti-Blackness and anti-Indigenous racisms as they intersect with other forms of oppression.
LO 6	LO 6 - Through critical reflexivity, transform understandings of the self in relation to others, social contexts, and environments.
LO 7	LO 7 - Identify, compare, and analyze how multiple ways of knowing impact knowledge production.
LO 8	LO 8 - Expose and critique colonial operations of power in the research process and their disproportionate inclusion/exclusion, and impact with various communities.
LO 9	LO 9 - Develop research studies in critical, disruptive, decolonizing and transformative ways that centre research processes and voices that have otherwise been subjugated and/or erased.
LO 10	LO 10 - Apply and critique social work skills such as assessment, engagement, case notes, advocacy and evaluation through anti-oppressive and decolonizing knowledge, skills and values.
LO 11	LO 11 - Recognize the role and power of oral and written communication as well as new communication technologies in representing and misrepresenting and/or supporting and advocating for communities.
LO 12	LO 12 - Implement critical communication strategies in areas such as assessment, case notes, technical reports, meeting minutes, policy briefs and dispositions.
