Tourism Research

Hospitality and Tourism Research Institute
Ted Rogers School of Management

Date: June 30th, 2024

Director's Overview

The Institute for Hospitality and Tourism Research (IHTR) is focused on conducting research that matters in academic and professional circles. The research that has been conducted this past year has led to continuation of increasing our research reputation through productivity, partnerships, and profile.

The Institute for Hospitality and Tourism Research (IHTR) was established in 2009 as the research “arm” of the School of Hospitality and Tourism Management (SHTM). The staff includes a Director (Graci) and, faculty researchers from SHTM (Dimanche, Dodds, Gibbs, Graci, Griffin, Peesker, Shaw, Kellershohn, Smith and Oh.) who supervise graduate students, an Adjunct Professor and Advisor (Walter Jamieson) and a variety of students employed through work-study and grants on a project basis. The mission of the Institute for Hospitality and Tourism Research is as follows:

“Our mission is to facilitate and conduct research of both scholarly value and significance to the tourism and hospitality field. We will mobilize knowledge to enhance the research reputation and impact of Toronto Metropolitan University, particularly in the tourism and hospitality field.”

The three main strategies are:

1. Value – to value, encourage and recognize faculty and student research
2. Engage – to engage students and faculty to conduct and participate in research. To engage others to learn about and participate in our research
3. Promote – to promote our research, our stories, our skills and our ability to help the industry and profile our research internationally to other researchers

This was accomplished through five objectives:

1. Research mobilization
2. Project work with industry
3. Research grants
4. Holding seminars/events
5. Provide student research opportunities

This year the Institute focused on promoting and disseminating research, building on the materials and marketing efforts of previous years and forging deeper ties to the industry. We also worked on the future of the research institute looking forward to how we can recalibrate to work with the tourism industry in creating high quality research.

The Institute for Hospitality and Tourism Research's affiliates have continued to conduct high-quality research that benefits the tourism industry. We have been abiding by our mission to mobilize research and transfer knowledge through sending out semi-annual newsletters to update stakeholders on our efforts and redesigning our current website. The faculty has been successful in training multiple students. A total of 13 undergraduate and graduate students have been hired. We have also been successful in building partnerships with industry which helps guide our strategic direction. In addition to focusing on research mobilization, faculty have collectively held 6 grants worth more than $129,260; published 21 peer-reviewed journal articles; 2 refereed conference papers, 12 book chapters and 3 trade publications. Presentations were also made at 14 conferences this year.

The Institute of Hospitality and Tourism Research continues to provide high-quality research and train highly qualified professionals. We look forward to the opportunities that 2024/2025 bring to the hospitality and tourism industry and continue in our efforts to provide practical and applicable research.

Sincerely,

Sonya Graci

New Leadership and Strategic Direction

The Institute for Hospitality and Tourism Research (IHTR) is excited to announce a new Director (Wayne W. Smith, Ph.D.) and a strategic direction shift, effective July 1, 2024.

New Director, New Vision:

The incoming Director will lead the IHTR, focusing on research and knowledge transfer.

Strategic Initiatives:

1. Research Brokerage: We are establishing a research broker program to connect industry partners with faculty and students through Memoranda of Understanding (MOUs) that allow data sharing for research projects. A successful MOU with Tourism HR Canada already provides access to four valuable datasets across TRSM, fostering interdisciplinary collaboration. Negotiations for two additional MOUs are underway.
2. Media Engagement: The IHTR will actively engage with media outlets on tourism issues, facilitating faculty media appearances and collaborating with TRSM partners to develop impactful press releases. We aim to solidify the IHTR as Canada's leading hospitality and tourism knowledge source.
3. Student Fellowship Program (Launch: January 2025): This initiative is under development and aims to build a community of student fellows, including graduate and undergraduate students. The program will increase student research participation and foster a stronger sense of community within the IHT.
4. Enhancing HTM Rankings: The IHTR Director will collaborate with the HTM Program Director to analyze major ranking criteria and develop strategies to improve the HTM program's position in these rankings.

We are confident that these strategic initiatives will position the IHTR for continued success in research, education, and knowledge transfer within the hospitality and tourism industry.

The Year in Review

Highlights

The Institute has achieved its goals this academic year and is proud to showcase its activities. The following has been achieved specifically through the Institute:

1. Research mobilization

- a. Revised current website following the Toronto Metropolitan style and template provided through Adobe AEM. Updated and redesigned parts of the website to be easier for stakeholders to navigate.
- b. Shared research and events through marketing through such avenues as:
 - i. Newsletter
 - ii. Social media platforms
 - iii. HTM and TedPacks newsletters
 - iv. Other TMU departments, i.e. EUSS, EnSciMan
- c. Semi-annual HTM Research newsletter
- d. Increased awareness to students, industry and researchers
 - i. Email notifications sent to all HTM students
 - ii. Mailchimp Newsletters and announcements
 - iii. Increased newsletter subscribers
 - iv. Increased LinkedIn followers by 1.13% (629)
 - v. Increased Facebook followers by 1.06% (346)
 - vi. Increased Instagram followers by 4.53% (383)

2. Project work with industry/Research grants

- a. Sonya Graci collaborated with the Indigenous Tourism Association of Canada and the Diversity Institute on the NorthernWE project.
- b. Rachel Dodds collaborated with the Faroah Islands on a project titled “A Transition to Value-Based Measurement of Tourism”
- c. Tom Griffin worked with Tourism Yukon on the Yukon Project– “Hosting Friends and Relatives: Experiences and Implications for Whitehorse and the Yukon”
- d. Frederic Dimanche obtained a Partnership Engage Grant (PEG) from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) focusing on co-designing governance for cultural tourism.

3. Holding seminars/events

1. Tourism Research Mixer
 - a. Hosted by Sonya Graci and Wayne Smith (over 20 people attended)

5. Provide student research opportunities

1. The Institute has hired 13 students:

- a. 13 RAs were hired through existing research grants to assist faculty

A year-by-year comparison of Institute affiliate activity is below.

7. Dr. Hyunghwa (Rick) Oh, Assistant Professor
8. Dr. Walter Jamieson, Adjunct Professor
9. Dr. Norman Shaw, Associate Professor
10. Dr. Wayne Smith, Professor

Awards and Recognitions

1. Griffin, T. (2024). Dean's Service Award
2. Dimanche, F. (2024). Inaugural Research Ambassador Medal, Ted Roger School of Management, Toronto Metropolitan University
3. Dodds, R. (2024). Inaugural TRSM Research Ambassador Medal, Ted Roger School of Management, Toronto Metropolitan University
4. Peesker, K. (2023). Woman in Sales Education Trailblazer, Sales Education Foundation
5. Dimanche, F. (2024) Dean's Research Recognition Award, Toronto Metropolitan University

Knowledge Mobilization

A number of efforts to mobilize knowledge specifically by the Institute continued this year. The website is gaining traction to showcase information. Mobilizing knowledge is a continued key goal of the Institute (please see goals and objectives in the first part of this report). These efforts aim to showcase what the Institute can do and focus the efforts on our research projects.

Accomplishments are fourfold. First, social media is focused on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and LinkedIn (see table below for increased exposure).

Second, the Institute has been working on revamping our current website to be more user-friendly and showcasing our research efforts.

Finally, the Institute condenses and summarizes the latest updates in the newsletter. The Institute highlights the past and upcoming events, HTM research accomplishments and the latest publications. The newsletter can be found online.

The following table outlines increased reach through social media:

Platform	April 2023	April 2024	% Change
LinkedIn	622	629	1.13
Twitter	1017	1015	-0.20
Facebook	379	383	1.06
Instagram	331	346	4.53

Events

1. Tourism Research Mixer

- b. Hosted by Sonya Graci and Wayne Smith with over 20 attendees from faculty across the campus.

Training Highly Qualified Personnel

The Institute has trained a number of HQP through supervision of masters students as well as the training of research assistants

Masters Supervision

Griffin, T.:

1. Nathaniel Lu (MScM student, Toronto Metropolitan University, Canada)

Graci, S.:

1. Maryam Siddiqi (MASC, Environmental Science in Management, Toronto Metropolitan University, Canada)
2. Jacob Xiang (MASC, Environmental Science in Management, Toronto Metropolitan University) Successfully Defended

Dodds, R.:

1. Monica Polo (MASC, Environmental Science in Management, Toronto Metropolitan University, Canada)

Chris Gibbs

1. Brian Christenson (Communication and Culture)
2. Sailavan Umair (Master of Science in Management)

Research Assistants

Thirteen undergraduate and graduate research assistants were supervised this year. This is very important to the Institute as we are engaging undergraduate students in high quality research.

Undergraduate/Graduate Research Assistants:

Natasha Francis (Griffin)

Casey Vo (Griffin)

Naveen Osahan (Griffin)

Kinneret Witty (Griffin)

Nathaniel Lu (Griffin)

Maryam Siddiqi (Graci)

Kaithlyn Washbrook (Graci)

Lacey Willmott (Graci)

Shaila Baran (Graci)

Israt Linda Jahsn (Oh)

Somin Park (Oh)

Selena Park (Oh)

Jane Doan (Smith)

Projects

NORTHERN WE (Dr. Sonya Graci)

Northern Women Entrepreneurs in Tourism is a collaborative research project with the Indigenous Tourism Association of Canada and the Diversity Institute funded by the Government of Canada through the Future Skills Centre. Taking place in the Northernmost reaches of Canada, the Northern WE in Tourism project unites Indigenous women entrepreneurs from the Northwest Territories, Newfoundland and Labrador, Nunavut, the Yukon, and Northern Quebec in a study to identify common pathways to entrepreneurship. This research will identify best practices and explore the paths women traveled to launch and grow their business and explore the accessibility of resources, the efficiencies and deficiencies of existing training, supports, and services. Co-creating recommendations with the Indigenous Women Entrepreneurs, in hopes of rectifying barriers and challenges. This research highlights concepts such as Indigenous self determination, economic reconciliation, and entrepreneurial ecosystems.

A TRANSITION TO VALUE-BASED MEASUREMENT OF TOURISM (Dr. Rachel Dodds)

One of the sustainability challenges of the tourism sector is that, while there is a growing understanding that volume alone is not a determinant of balanced tourism development, the standard indicators used to measure, track and report tourism sector performance are volume-based, i.e., number of arrivals (or in some cases the number of nights spent by visitors). Although there has been a recent growth in awareness that volume-based thinking is damaging for the long-term health of the tourism industry, the communities and the resources it depends on, the main success measures continue to be defined by volume, resulting in policies, budgets, and strategies that are driven by growth. A transition to value-based measurement of tourism is only possible if there is an alternative that is easy to administer and transition to. This project aims to address this need through three steps. The first is to collect and combine existing sustainable tourism metrics. The second is to study any successes of destinations that have tried to move from volume-based indicators to value-based ones. Third, to develop a prototype, in partnership with the Faroe Islands to test the viability of a simple (one to three indicator) alternative to current volume-based metrics.

HOSTING FRIENDS AND RELATIVES: EXPERIENCES AND IMPLICATIONS FOR WHITEHORSE AND THE YUKON (Dr Tom Griffin)

As hosts, residents of Whitehorse attract visitors, curate tailored experiences, and explore their own communities, stimulating diverse economic, social, and cultural impacts.

Residents are influential ambassadors for their community, and businesses, associations, and government agencies interested in tourism development, destination reputation, cultural participation and integration, and migration and settlement, should acknowledge and leverage them as hosts. Hosts could be encouraged and incentivized to invite guests to meet specific goals including low season demand and dispersal of tourism activity, recruitment and settlement of migrants, resident involvement in local culture, and the provision of personal support including childcare and emotional well-being.

This report aims to establish a knowledge base recognizing hosting as a mechanism and catalyst for tourism and community development, and to encourage further research and informed action. The detailed report follows this summary.

Based on firsthand experiences of 54 Whitehorse residents interviewed in spring 2023, this report reveals how personal hospitality extends beyond simple acts of accommodation to serve as a foundation for cultural exchange, economic development, and enhanced communal bonds.

Research Grants

Several faculty members have been actively pursuing internal and external funding to support their research at the provincial, national, and international levels. Although not all applications will be successful, the process of review and collaboration with other researchers can lead to successful applications in the future.
