

Research Snapshot

Using a participatory integrated watershed management approach for tourism

Rachel Dodds

Process

- This paper aims to move environmental organizations and governing agencies towards more sustainable tourism
- Uses a participatory integrated watershed management approach (PIWM)

Results

- Adopting a PIWM approach for managers can ensure environmental considerations are put in tourism development
- Reviewing tourism impacts may be also beneficial to environmental governance

Visit htmresearch.ca for more

Dodds, R. (2018). Using a Participatory Integrated Watershed Management Approach for Tourism. Tourism Planning & Development, 17(1), 1-16. doi:10.1080/21568316.2018.1556327

