Avery Rose

She/Her

Avery Rose is a Toronto Based Actor, model and movement choreographer. Through her experiences in performance, Avery has gained tremendous skills in building professional relationships, and finding the joy in the stories she's a part of. Avery is a go-getter who is excited to make further strides in the performance industry.

Avery is especially keen toward on-camera acting, and recently has been featured in a national KFC commercial. The commercial was a terrific experience for her in terms of gaining national exposure. One of Avery's most frequent notes from her acting work is how easy she is to work with, which is very important to her as an artist. Avery believes that in all performance spaces, fostering a positive, yet efficient work environment is consequential to the success of the project. She loves to bring levity and dedication to every project she works on.

Through her experience in theater and film, Avery has discovered an ambition for fight/intimacy choreography. She has seen the ramifications of lackluster movement choreography, and wishes to change that as she emerges in the industry. Avery has a passion for keeping actors safe, while ensuring their movement is stylized. In her future she hopes to create a safe space for actors with disabilities and help them adjust on set when they do fight and intimacy work.

Avery is looking forward to advancing her career in the coming years. She is dedicated to a career in performance, and will never give up even in the toughest times. Avery will strive to put her experienced practice into motion as she leaps into the industry.
