JACQUELINE ATKINS SCHOLARSHIP

The Jacqueline Atkins Scholarship honours the memory of a Ryerson professor who was a pioneer in the teaching of business communication in Canada. Professor Atkins exemplified business and professional communication at its finest. In everything she said or wrote, she strove to be correct, honest, and considerate of her listeners or readers.

$1000 in scholarship money will be awarded to a student whose work embodies the principles of clarity, correctness, integrity and audience consideration.

All students in CMN 100, CMN 200, CMN 279, and CMN 300 are automatically eligible for this award.

At the end of the semester, your professor may nominate one or more students based on regular communication assignments during the semester.

Nominees must have achieved an A- or higher in their CMN course, and be in clear standing.

Actual graded assignments along with an unmarked exact copy will be submitted as part of the judging process, so it is important that each student retain all graded assignments returned during the semester as well as original electronic copies of assignments. Your professor may nominate you!

Adjudication of the 2021/22 award will be in the summer of 2022. The scholarship will be presented at the ProCom Fall 2022) awards ceremony.
