ZAHRA ABELZADEH

“ I feel my openness to learn was a big factor, as well as my willingness to create opportunities for myself through new projects to not only help the team but to help test and improve my skills. I also utilized more leadership and project management skills to ensure quality outcomes for the tasks I was assigned to.

I believe one of my biggest contributions was launching an enterprise-wide onboarding tool as it was a large scale project with immediate impact.

Another big contribution was showing the team that they can expect good work from Co-op students, that we have the skills that can get the work done, and that it is ok to have expectations and allocate more tasks rather than just one or two projects.
